In and Out II

Picture Description¹⁾

A complex urban scene with blurred figures and reflections, possibly captured through a window.

Analysis¹⁾

This photograph explores the theme of urban duality, captured through the reflective surface of a glass facade. The composition presents a multi-layered scene: on one hand, the external world with blurred figures traversing a public space and a building across the street with visible windows; on the other, the interior space is partially visible, with elements like a staircase, a reception area, and the silhouettes of individuals. The overlapping reflections create an ambiguous space, blurring the boundaries between inside and outside, public and private. The interplay of light and shadow further emphasizes the fragmented nature of urban experience, inviting the viewer to contemplate the transient and multifaceted aspects of contemporary city life.
