Tram Track II

Picture Description¹⁾

A perspective shot of train tracks splitting in a grassy area, with a shadow figure in the foreground.

Analysis¹⁾

This photograph captures a diverging set of tram tracks as they split, leading the viewer's eye towards the horizon. The rails are embedded within a paved path, flanked on both sides by dense, untamed vegetation. The scene evokes a sense of forgotten infrastructure reclaimed by nature, with the building silhouettes in the background hinting at the urban context. The photographer's own shadow falls prominently across the tracks, adding a personal and ephemeral layer to the composition.
