Tree Alley II

A blurred view of bare trees against a bright, overcast sky.

Analysis<sup>1)</sup>

This photograph evokes a sense of dizzying upward motion through a forest. The stark black branches of bare trees create a dynamic network against a soft, ethereal sky, rendered in muted tones of cream and sepia. The intentional blurring of the photograph creates a feeling of instability, perhaps mimicking the sensation of looking up at the treetops while moving quickly. The composition, angled and off-center, adds to the overall sense of disorientation, drawing the viewer into a space of disquieting beauty and abstract interpretation.
