Concrete Sparrow II

Picture Description¹⁾

A gray, stone sculpture of a bird with spread wings lies on a sandy surface, featuring a blue pole in the background.

Analysis¹⁾

This outdoor sculpture, composed of what appears to be weathered stone or concrete, evokes the form of a stylized bird in flight. The figure is grounded on a light-colored, sandy surface, suggesting an elemental, almost prehistoric quality. A smooth, blue pole intrudes from the upper left, creating an intriguing contrast between the organic sculpture and a modern, manufactured element. The coarse texture of the sculpture contrasts with the smooth surface of the pole, adding visual interest.
